The International Food Security Treaty aims to place the human right of FREEDOM FROM HUNGER under the protection of enforceable international law.

"(The IFST is potentially) the centerpiece of a whole system by which the capacity of the Earth to feed its people is translated into a real commitment to do something because there’s no fundamental need for hunger now, and certainly none for starvation."

Maurice Strong
Special Advisor to the Secretary-General of the United Nations
Former Director of the World Economic Forum Foundation Board

"(The IFST) is a new idea whose time has come."

Dr. Robert Muller
Former Chancellor, United Nations University
Former UN Assistant Secretary-General

The International Food Security Treaty

www.treaty.org

The IFST movement needs your talent, energy, and ideas. Contact us at JT@treaty.org